I need a safe port in this storm.

Rising debts, shaky governments, overextended banks and credit crises have made international investing unpredictable and downright risky.

But, I found a stable partner – Panama.

An ambitious infrastructure investment program, simplified tax structure, a growing economy – and the dollar currency further reduces risk.

Multinational companies and investors have recognized the opportunity.

More than 50 can be found in Panama, including market leaders like Caterpillar, 3M, Dell and P&G.

And in 2010, Panama was Latin America's leading recipient of foreign direct investment as a percentage of GDP according to a Latin Business Chronicle analysis.
